This book is the direct result of the shocking subculture of Government Housing that I personally experienced for five straight years. It was so interesting and fascinating, that I kept copious notes on a daily basis of the actions/reactions of all the people that make up Government Housing. I learned the roles played by the HUD Secretary, the state and local governments, the private non-profit companies, the thousands and thousands of employees, and the tenants and non-tenants. I also learned the shocking COST to the taxpayer. What I learned made me sad, happy, angry, confused and ashamed. I wrote this book for insight to our young adults on what to expect when deciding what path to take in their "precious" future lives.
