The book questions how modern migration and globalisation have impacted upon notions of belonging and identity within nation-states across the world. This book provides theoretical and empirical accounts of the relationship between identity, rights nationalism, race and ethnicity. The authors cover the complexity of the topic as identification has become much more multifaceted. The authors cover difficult and cutting edge issues relating to citizenship, nation formation, identity, remittances, transnational families, migration and asylum in the context of Australia,

Web Malaysia, Pakistan and Sri Lanka. These critical issues inform and shape key policy and program responses of many governments and are subject of topic in international relations forums between nation states. Legal Pluralism and

Governance in South Asia and the Diasporas contributes to the already heated debate about legal pluralism and the ontology of law by shifting the attention toward the relationship between what is treated as law and its impact on *governance at the fora of dispute resolution. This book addresses sensitive issues such as gender rights and alternative dispute resolution in India, Hindu and Muslim personal laws

Europe, cross-border white violence, the* change to Islamic legal traditions under Western domination, women's inheritance in Pakistan and in the disputed territory of Gilgit Baltistan, indigenous rights and resistance at the India-Bangladesh border, and customary laws of nomadic groups in

India. The authors deploy a variety of views that point at the pros and cons of legal pluralism and also integrates its opponents. They show how constructions of identity, religion, and power have historically informed the conceptualisation of secularism which may be an ideal, sometimes able to provide for perceptions of accountable governance, but also generating dividing worldviews. This book was published as a special issue of the Journal of Legal Pluralism and Official Law. Showcases the lives of Indian women working in New Zealand through four generations, in their own words and through official data. Stories of fabulous success merge with underemployment and no employment. Memories of Maori friendships and Maori relatives intertwine with mentoring by Pakeha women. Sewn into the stories are the spangles of an Indian patriarchal system which supported these women and at the same time created very strict demarcation lines; and the shaded sequins of in-laws who might manipulate them as they sought to carve out their careers and gain an education. Bhangra is commonly *understood as the hybrid music

produced in Britain
by British Asian
music producers
through mixing

melodies with western rhythms. This is dance of the same name. This book looks at Bhangra's global flows from one of its originary sites, the Indian subcontinent, to contribute to the understanding of emerging South Asian cultural practices such as Bhangra or Bollywood in multi-ethnic societies. It seeks to trace Bhangra's moves from Punjab and its 'return back' to look at the forces that initiate and regulate global flows of local texts and to ask how their producers and consumers redirect them to produce new definitions of culture, identity and nation. The critical importance of this book lies in understanding the difference between the present globalizing wave and previous trans-local movements. Gera

Roy contrasts the frames of cultural imperialism with those of cultural invasion to show how Indian cultures have constantly reinvented themselves by cross-pollinating with 'invading' cultures such as Hellenic, Persian, Arabic and many others in the past. By looking at Bhangra's flows to and from India, the book revises the relation between culture, space and identity and challenges boundaries. It weighs both the uses and costs of visibility

*provided by global marginalized groups

in diverse localities and explores whether

Finally, the book
considers whether cultural practices can

the real world.

This book analyses four major long-

region (the

South China Sea (Spratly Islands);
and India-

these conflicts.
International Conflict in the

Asia-Pacific
brings together in one volume four major
conflicts that have shaped the region, and studies how they evolved and how best to manage them. The book

seeks to find a pattern common to the four conflicts and their management as well as taking note of variations
among them,
hereby aiming to establish what might be called the 'Asia-Pacific way of managing intractable conflicts'. This book will of much interest to students of international conflict management, Asian politics, security studies and IR in general. Jacob Bercovitch is Professor of International Relations in the Political Science Department at the University of Canterbury in New Zealand. Widely regarded as one of the most influential scholars in the field of international conflict resolution, he is author of more than 15 books and numerous articles. Mikio Oishi is a Visiting Fellow with the positions that constitute the field of Canadian current areas of

attention to the cultures, globalization studies, and environmentalis m or ecocriticism; (2) interest in Indigenous literatures and settler-Indigenous relations; (3) attention to multiple diasporic and

interest in the ins

of Canadian literature as a discipline; (5) a turn towards

interest in early literature; (6) a growing interest

in articulating the affective
character of the "literary" - including an

interest in affect diverse array of interests -- from

the revival of more recent

Global Age
examines the construction of a Sikh national identity in postcolonial India and the diaspora and explores the reasons for the failure of the movement for an independent Sikh

state: Khalistan.
Based on a decade
of research, it is argued that the
movement to bring about a sovereign, Sikh
state should not be interpreted as resulting from the weakness of the
'communal' ties

which bind members of the Sikh 'nation'
together, but points to the
transformation of

under conditions
of globalization.
Globalization is through the proliferation and

facilitated the articulation of a

argued that this 'diasporic' identity potentially challenges the conventional narratives of international relations and makes the imagination of a post-Westphalian community

Our society's literate population
who are into research
and teaching are dependent on libraries for accessing information and information sources.

Thus the significance
and need of library
and information
services are widely realized and recognized. Library
users always appreciate if the relevant and accurate information is

quickly and timely made available to them. Students, research scholars and faculty members are mostly dependent upon the library for information
resources and services to fulfill their information needs
and to keep

Web themselves up to date. Libraries are acquiring relevant material to meet the requirements of the changing demands of the users. The procurement of
information
resources by the library and its proper organization helps in

information
dissemination expeditiously and ensures its optimum use by the users.
Users' interests are of prime importance in the library sector. It has a direct bearing on information-
seeking behaviour which differs from individual to individual and from discipline to discipline. This book will be of great interest to research scholars, faculty members, students of Punjabi Literature. It will help the librarians to organize their collection accordingly. This book is based on the study conducted by the research in perspective of six universities i.e. University of Delhi (Delhi), University of Jammu (Jammu), Kurukshetra University (Kurukshetra), Panjab University

(Chandigarh), Punjabi University
(Patiala), Guru
Nanak Dev
University
(Amritsar).
Almost from the moment, some five centuries ago, that their religion was founded in the

Punjab by Guru Nanak, Sikhs have enjoyed a distinctive identity. This sense of difference, forged
during Sikhism's
fierce struggles with the Mughal Empire,
is still symbolised by the 'Five Ks' ('panj kakar', in Punjabi), those articles of faith

to which all baptised Sikhs subscribe:
uncut hair bound in a turban; comb; special undergarment; iron
bracelet and dagger (or kirpan) - the unique marks of the Sikh military fraternity (the word Sikh means 'disciple' in Punjabi). Yet for all its ongoing attachment to the religious symbols that have helped set it

apart from neighbouring faiths in South Asia, Sikhism
amounts to far more than just signs or externals. Now the world's fifth largest religion, with a

significant diaspora especially in Britain
and North America,
this remarkable
monotheistic
tradition commands
the allegiance of 25 million people, and is a global phenomenon. In her
balanced appraisal, Nikky-Guninder

Web Kaur Singh reviews
the history, theology and worship of a community poised
between reconciling
its hereditary creeds
and certainties with the fast-paced pressures of modernity. She outlines and explains
the core Sikh beliefs,

and explores the
writings and teachings of the Ten Sikh Gurus in Sikhism's Holy Scriptures, the Sri Guru Granth Sahib
(more usually called just the 'Granth').
Further chapters
explore Sikh ethics,
art and architecture,

and matters of gender and the place of women in the tradition. The book attractively combines the warm empathy of a Sikh with the objective insights and acute perspectives of a prominent scholar
of religion.
