This book presents a complete and annotated English translation of the text Diary of a Boat Trip to Wu, a travel journal written by the famous Southern Song dynasty (1127-1279) government official and writer Fan Chengda (1126-1193). The journal describes a boat journey the author made in teh summer and fall of 1177 from Chengdu (Sichuan) to his home near Suzhou (Jiangsu). Fan's trip covered a distance of approximately 1700 English miles and took 122 days to complete. This Diary of a Boat Trip to Wu is especially valuable because it provides detailed, first-hand descriptions of many aspects of the Song dynasty (960-1279) geography, history, literature, art, and religion. Perhaps most noteworthy are the author's lengthy and often fascinating accounts and assessments of scenic and historic sites he stopped to visit during the trip.

"Chaim Soutine (1893-1943), born in a remote village in present-day Byelorussia, became one of the best known members of the group of expatriate artists who, between the two World Wars, came to be known as the School of Paris." "Avigdor Poseq's new study of Soutine's work demonstrates that his Jewish background, and his struggles against it, provide the key to his highly individual and innovatory paintings, dismissed by contemporary critics as 'Jewish smears' and a sign of racial inferiority. Throughout his life Soutine had to struggle against his Jewishness for acceptance as an artist, and never referred to it overtly in his work. Nevertheless, as this survey fascinatingly reveals, his ineradicable cultural and ethnic heritage lies just below the surface of his paintings."--BOOK JACKET.Title Summary field provided by Blackwell
